Department, as the case may be. Where there are Heads of Offices, they may themselves carry out the surprise check periodically.

[G.I., M.H.A., O.M. No. 60/17/64-Ests. (A), dated the 4th August, 1965.]

Compensatory off.— It has been decided that the accumulation of compensatory leave in lieu of duty on Sundays, etc., will not be subject to any limit, but such leave should be allowed within a month of its becoming due.

[G.I., M.F., O.M. No. 9 (17)-E. II (B)/65, dated the 27th November, 1965.]

Exception.— It has been represented that it is difficult to grant the compensatory leave within one month as envisaged where due to sudden spurt of work, a full section or a wing of an office consisting of a sizeable number of employees has to be put on work during holidays. In such cases the grant of compensatory leave to all the staff within a month is not possible without detriment to current work. It has, therefore, been decided that while as a rule the compensatory leave should be granted within one month of its becoming due, this condition may be relaxed in exceptional circumstances where an officer of the rank of Joint Secretary or above (in the case of Secretariat Staff) and Head of the Department (in the case of staff of Attached/Subordinate or other office) is satisfied that the grant of compensatory leave to all the staff within a month would cause serious dislocation of current work provided that not more than two days' compensatory leave is allowed to be availed of at a time.
